Program Vision:

A distinguished, competitive, and competent teacher of German, capable of developing themselves and their profession.

Program Mission

The program aims to prepare German language teachers through the theoretical, practical, and applied foundations of the German language. The teacher will be proficient in linguistic competencies, understanding and accepting of cultural, civilizational, and social differences. This qualifies them for the teaching profession, applying the latest methods and technological techniques for teaching German, seeking out new developments in their field, being considerate of the community, its culture, and the nature of the age group, and keeping pace with emerging developments and innovations in the educational process.

What you need to know about the German Language Teacher Program for International and Language Schools:

- The program accepts students who have graduated from high school according to the admission score for the Faculty of Education, Helwan University, in addition to applying the internal standards and conditions of the faculty.
